The extraordinary Sea Cloud is a queen of the seas, a commanding presence under sail and in any harbor. Commissioned by Wall Street businessman E.F. Hutton for his wife, socialite Marjorie Merriweather Post, Sea Cloud remains the largest, most elegant private sailing yacht ever built. At 360 feet, the four-masted, three-deck barque accommodates 64 guests and exudes a signature charm, created by Post's magnificent interiors and fanned by the intimate ambiance they inspire. Sea Cloud creates an aura of never-ending celebration, whether dining in the elegant grand salon, lounging with a cool drink at the stern or the singular moment of getting underway, when Sea

Cloud's vast rigging unleashes 30 sails with more than 32,000 square feet of surface to catch the wind. Timeless elegance, a sense of adventure, every modern convenience, and a sense of magical moments - this is Sea Cloud's unique allure.

These two river cruisers are worthy Sea Cloud ambassadors on Europe's interior waterways. As floating five-star hotels, River Cloud and River Cloud II accommodate only 90 passengers, providing generous interior space and gloriously wide-open decks for recreation and simple leisure. A high level of comfort, luxury, and ease is expressed in cabins and public areas designed with hardwoods, high-quality materials, and 1930s flair. ## French Country Waterways

For the French, the good life is defined by simple pleasures: fine food and wine, comfortable surroundings, lively conversation with friends and family. French Country Waterways reflects this joie de vivre, and for those lucky enough to cruise the inland waterways aboard its deluxe vessels, life is very good, indeed.

Each of the company's canal cruisers — Adrienne, Esprit, Horizon II, Nenuphar and Princess — exudes the warm ambiance of a refined country inn. Carrying just eight to 18 guests, these beautifully appointed barges invite you to relax amidst warm woods, cozy provincial furnishings, plush carpeting and soft lighting. Thoughtful touches and amenities like fresh flowers and generous storage space enhance the charming staterooms and suites, each with its own bath. Complimentary bars are stocked with premium spirits and liqueurs, libraries have a large selection of books and games, and spacious sundecks provide the perfect vantage to sit and watch any cares drift slowly away.

Leisurely traveling along France's intricate network of canals, guests discover some of the country's most historic regions — Burgundy, rich in history, art and culture; Champagne, celebrated for its namesake wine and regal heritage; the Upper Loire, famed for its many charming villages and châteaux; and Alsace-Lorraine, a perfect blend of vineyards, primeval forests and serene pastureland.

Days are spent exploring the quaint towns and picturesque countryside; your barge's gentle pace and carefully chosen overnight moorings allow you to easily get onboard and off as the mood strikes you. You can stroll along the canals' pathways or ride the onboard bicycles to visit the many small villages along your route. You also may choose to join the barge's daily guided excursions to nearby historic sites and wine estates.

While you're visiting local attractions, your barge's chef is off browsing local farmers' markets, searching for prime meats and fresh fish, garden-grown fruits and vegetables, and creamy cheeses — all of which you'll savor that evening in creative dishes that rival those served at the best kitchens in France. Of course, each meal is complimented by a variety of fine French wines, most of which boast Grand Cru and Premier Cru labels. A highlight of every cruise is an elegant dinner ashore at one of France's most celebrated restaurants, each claiming the coveted stars of the Guide Michelin. At each property, the chef will propose a memorable menu gourmand featuring the finest choices from his kitchen.

Six-night barge cruises depart every Sunday from April through October; 2007 fares range from $4,095 to $5,995 per person, double occupancy. Full charters also available.

Los Notros

Los Cerros

The hotel's name says it all: Remota, an ethereal lodge situated in the heart of Chilean Patagonia, is far from the beaten track. The 72-room lodge surrounds guests with breathtaking views of Ultima Esperanza Bay, the Balmaceda Glacier and the Paine Mountain Range, all framed by floor-to-ceiling windows. Muted earth tones and a minimalist design scheme pays humble homage to the incomparable beauty of this untamed landscape.

Remota is so removed, not even an Internet or mobile signal reaches it. Instead, guests here achieve an earthly nirvana in simple pleasures: a meditative walk on the grounds, lively conversation by a bonfire, fine food that emphasizes fresh, local ingredients, complimented by exceptional Chilean wines. In the aptly named Sala Para el Ocio Total (Room for Total Leisure®) you can further relax in the sauna and Jacuzzi, or take a dip in the heated pool.

To fully immerse its guests in the splendors of Patagonia, Remota provides daily, guided adventures into the nearby forests, mountains, rivers and lakes. Choose to hike and paddle in Torres del Paine National Park or go further afield to sail the Chilean fjords, explore ancestral native sites and visit nearby estancias.

Remota offers three-, four-, and seven-night programs ranging from $990 to $2,340 per person through May, 2007 and three-, four-, seven-, ten-, and even 14-night programs ranging from $1,160 to $3,750 per person through August, 2008. Rates include all meals, non-alcoholic beverages, guided excursions each day and transfers between the lodge and Puerto Natales.

Ushuaia

Los Acebos

Located on the Beagle Channel and surrounded by lofty mountains, alpine lakes and subantarctic forests, Ushuaia is touted as the world's southernmost city and serves as a picturesque gateway to Tierra del Fuego National Park. Within the park's 155,675 acres, visitors discover an untouched glacial landscape carpeted in daunting peaks, deep valleys washed by rivers and lakes, and dazzling coasts lined by bays, cliffs and rocky beaches. Nature lovers and adventure seekers flock here to go birding, hiking, horseback riding, climbing, diving and skiing.

It is within these stunning surroundings that you'll find Las Hayas, the only five-star resort in the region. Silhouetted against the distant city and seamlessly blending into the landscape, this luxurious resort resembles a mountain castle, guarded by a beech forest and serving as a bastion of relaxation and refinement. Here the rugged environment does not preclude comforts such as a first-class restaurant, relaxing lounges or a full health club with heated pool, Jacuzzi, steam bath and hydrotherapy treatments.

A recent entrant on the Ushuaia scene is 56-room Los Acebos, a comfortable and modern sister property of Las Hayas. Located near the city and offering fine service and accommodations, the property is an excellent base for those exploring both local culture and the surrounding wilderness.

Las Hayas

Puyuhuapi

Its philosophy is as sophisticatedly simple as its design: Puyuhuapi Lodge and Spa aims to immerse guests in the spectacular wilderness of Chile's Patagonia. To be sure, the lodge offers a fashionably relaxing stay. Situated on the serene shores of Dorita Bay in southern Chile and accessible only by sea, Puyuhuapi applies a minimalist-style scheme to its 33 guestrooms and public spaces, with exposed beams, natural lighting and muted tones. The full-service spa includes a Turkish bath and cascading pool, three rejuvenating thermal pools along with aromatherapy and hydrotherapy rooms.

Yet Puyuhuapi humbly sees itself as merely your base for exploring the breathtaking surroundings. Here, in what is characterized as the "last boundaries on earth," you can trek through the temperate forest of Queulat National Park, ride a bicycle along the Austral Highway, go fly fishing, and take the lodge catamaran on an overnight expedition to the San Rafael Lagoon and its majestic glacier. Inclusive three- to five-night packages from $850 per person.

Entrée Yachts

Alaska is a huge, diverse, and magnificent state. Over a million people visit Alaska each year but almost all arrive on large ships and spend their time in a few busy ports. For those seeking an Alaskan experience that is more personal, private and complete, the charter vessels of Entrée Yachts offer an unparalleled adventure along the Inside Passage. Unlike big ships, yachts can voyage close to shore, exploring scenic inlets and islands to bring travelers close to wildlife and wilderness. And, because yachts can travel with great flexibility, the vessels can change course or even stop to make the most of any opportunity.

As true expedition vessels, each yacht has an experienced captain and crew as well as an onboard naturalist to organize the day's activities. At night the yacht anchors in a quiet, remote setting for drinks, an exquisitely prepared dinner and a good night's sleep.

While Entrée's yachts are built for adventure they are beautifully appointed and designed for comfort. Vessels range in size from 110 to 175 feet, accommodating groups of 6 to 12 family or friends in private staterooms, each with en-suite bath.

Rates for inclusive Alaska charters range from $45,000 to $145,000 per week.
